The property known as the Lewis Dittman House is located on the east side of Washington Road just south of the intersection of MD 32, Short Lane and Washington Road, in the community of Fenby. The property consists of a ca. 1870 single-family dwelling and is not considered eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places.

The Dittman House is a two-story, two-bay frame structure covered with a gable roof with a two-story rear ell and a two-story shed roof addition extending off of the rear. The house has been altered by the addition of replacement windows and new, vertical pattern aluminum siding. The interior has been entirely remodelled. The two-story, two-bay dwelling is representative of rural domestic building forms of the period, but lacks the architectural distinctiveness and integrity necessary to qualify it for listing on the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion C. The property is not known to have any associations with persons or events significant to our past and is thus not eligible under Criteria A or

Lewis Dittman House
Continuation Sheet 7.1

Description

This dwelling is located on the east side of Washington Road just south of the triangular shaped community as defined by the intersection of MD 32, Short Lane and Washington Road. At this point Washington Road follows a ridge, with the land fading off steeply on the west. The Lewis Dittman House is located in the area now thought of as Fenby, although the community of that name originated well north of this house near the intersections of MD 32 and Kate Wagner Road. The historic village of Fenby originated in the agricultural area east and west of Md 32 near the farm of Fenby L. Hering. This area was destroyed, first by the construction of MD 97, paralleling MD 32 on the east, followed by the removal of many farms for the construction of a large institutional complex now comprising the Westminster High School, Emergency Operations Center, Robert Moton Elementary School, and Carroll Community College, etc.

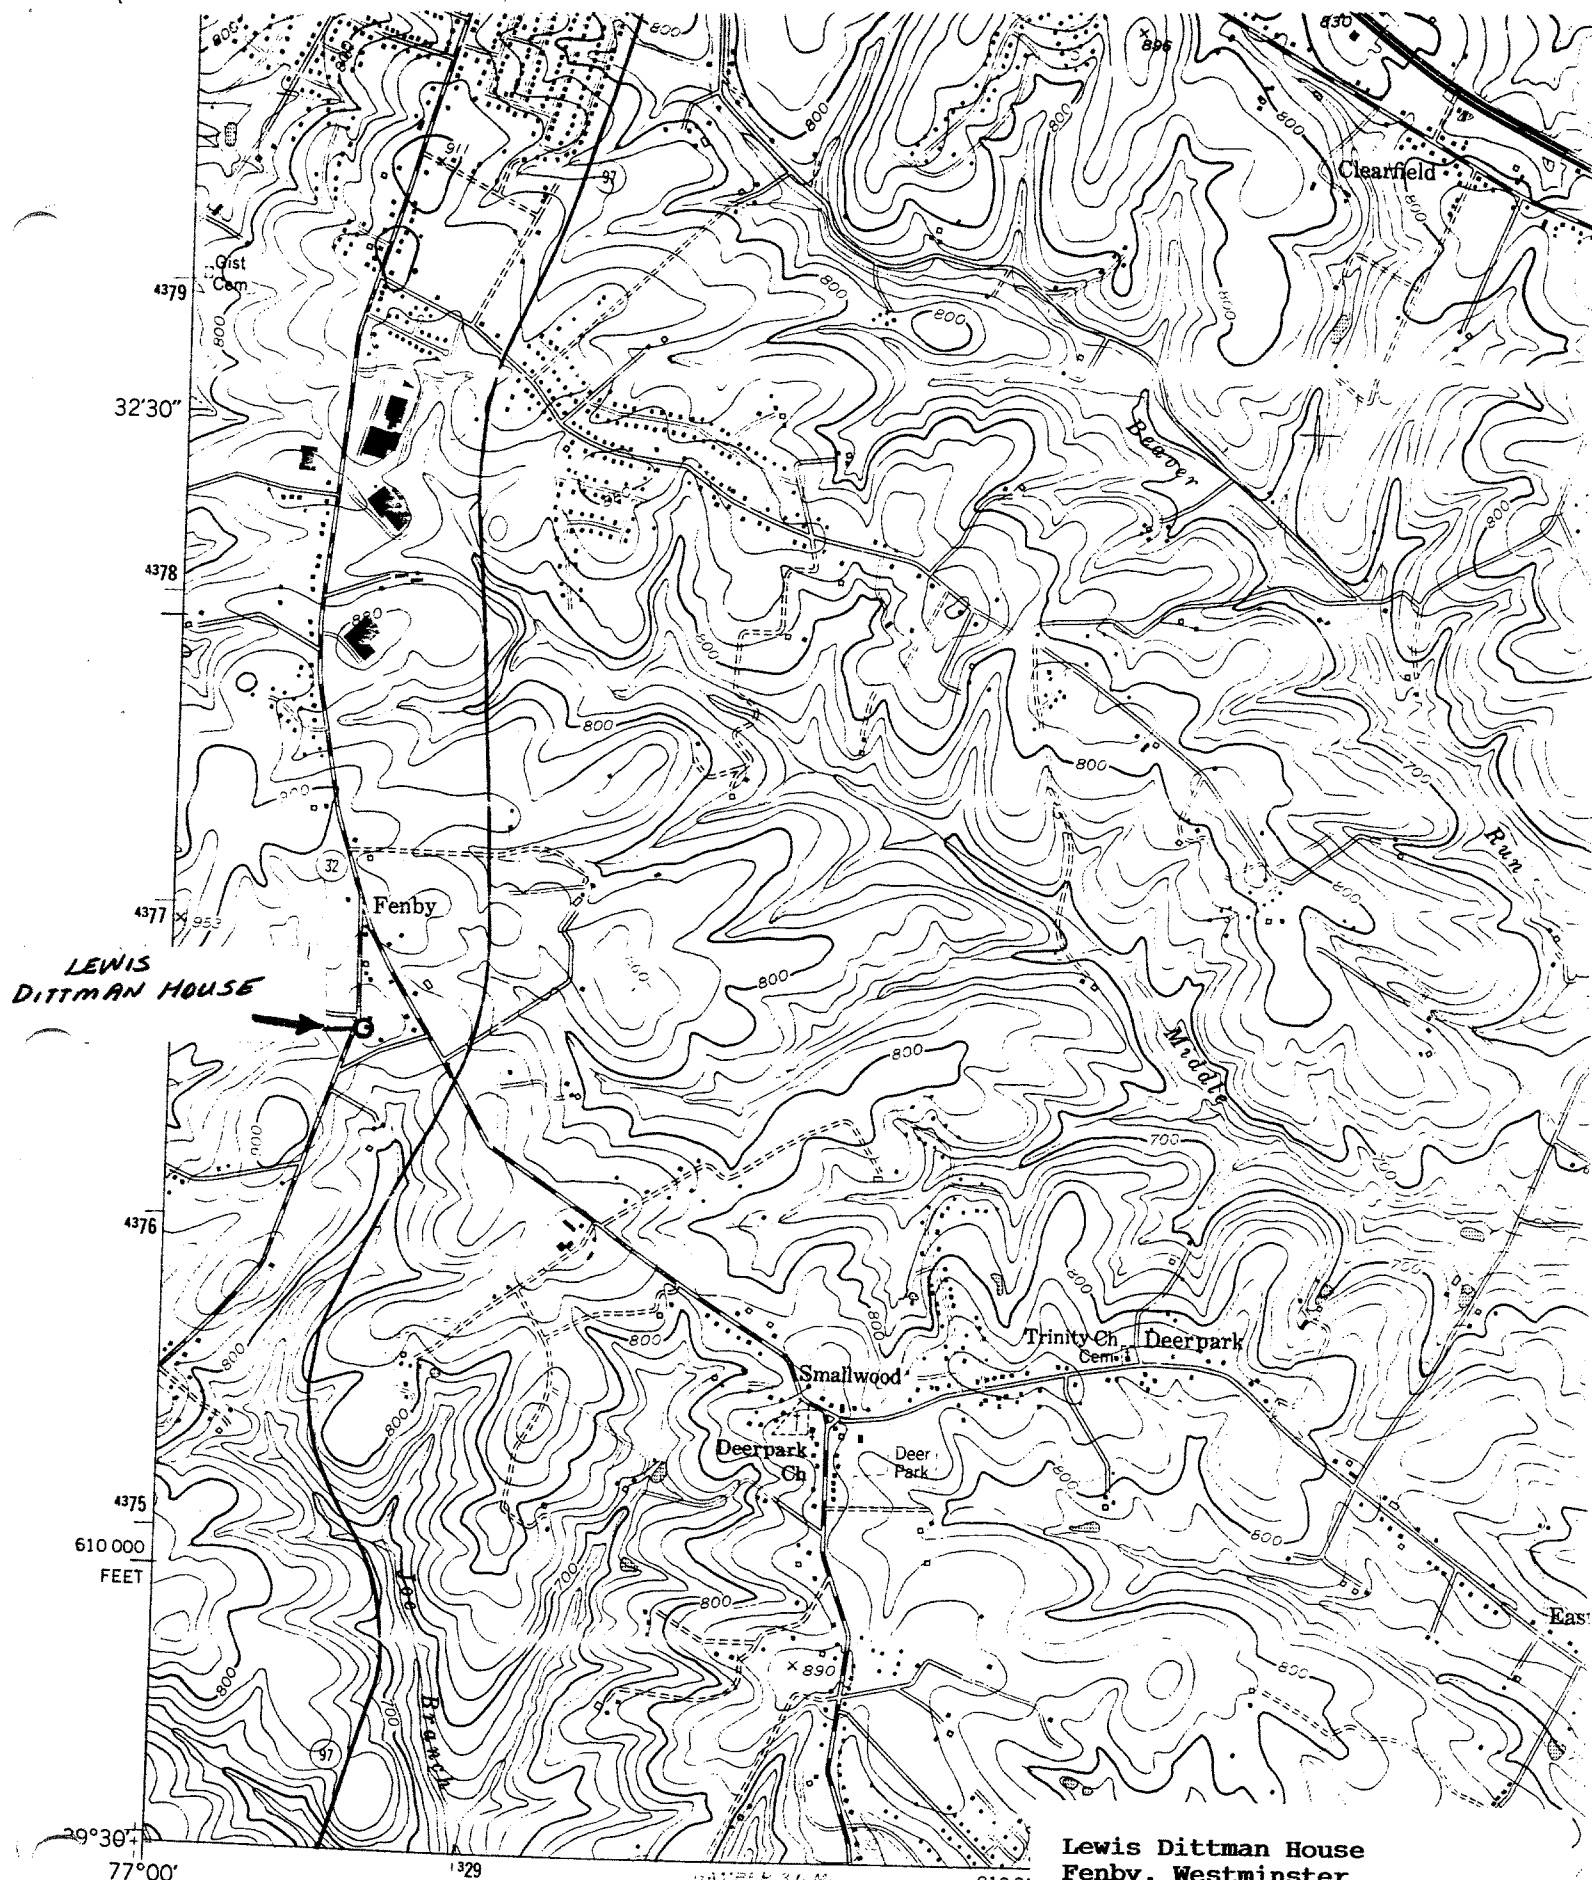

The Dittman House has been greatly altered on both the exterior and the interior. The property was purchased by the first Dittman to settle on Washington Road, Lewis Dittman, in the 1870's. According to family descendants, there may have been a log structure on the site, although the area was unimproved in 1862. It is likely that Lewis Dittman constructed the original part, the front of the current multipart house directly fronting on Old Washington Road. Lewis Dittman enlarged the house by extending the ell section on the rear, or east elevation. His grandson, the current owner George Edward Dittman, reported that he completely gutted the dwelling, removed the chimney and fireplace, and rebuilt the interior. He replaced all windows, and clad the exterior with vertical pattern vinyl siding. All of the buildings on the site, a garage and shed, appear to be of recent construction.

The property was subdivided in the 1940's and numerous lots have been sold off and modern buildings construction on them. Prior to that the property, there had been only two outlots, as Lewis Dittman in 1910 had a house constructed at 1760 MD 32 for his son George, and another house a short distance from it for his daughter.

Lewis Dittman House

Significance

The Lewis Dittman House is one of the oldest dwellings in the Fenby area south of Westminster, the southernmost remnant of the community, largely obliterated by modern construction. Although family members still reside within the elongated triangular area defined by Old Washington Road, MD 32 and Short Lane, and Lewis Dittman built two houses for his children a distance away on MD 32, the house itself has been subject to extensive alteration on both and interior and exterior, resulting in a considerable loss of integrity. The house continues to be owned by Dittman family descendants, although the only other Dittman in the area, the great grandson of Lewis, resides in a structure he built within the last ten years or so.
